Marriage Support and Counselling Organisations – (Regional Guide)

Whoever you contact for marriage counselling, we suggest that you ask them the simple questions below.

- 1) Are your marriage counsellors married (or widowed)?
- 2) Will his/her or their primary aim be to help us restore our marriage, if that is possible?
- 3) What proportion, roughly, of couples with whom your organisation works, succeed in restoring their marriage?

If you are not satisfied with the answers you receive, try another counselling organisation.

If you cannot find a counsellor near you through any of the organisations below, see the notes at the end of the list.

A star * in the list indicates that the organisation offers counselling. The other organisations listed offer support but not counselling.

Anyone who cannot find counselling help through these organisations, or those in the Regional Guide which follows, should consult the directory on the Association of Christian Counsellors' website www.acc-uk.org On that website look for those which offer counselling for marriage, couples or relationships. They offer counselling to Catholics and non-Catholics.

Another alternative is to approach your local branch of Catholic Marriage Care, which should be found under the heading Marriage Care in your local telephone directory.
